Hey [REDACTED]

Your final paper was really great. We are getting ready to submit the final grades and you're sitting at a C+, which is a grade that doesn't reflect your grasp of the content. I'd really like to see you go back and participate on the Discussion Board 3 and 4 topics so that you can get those points and move your grade to the A you deserve. Let me know if you'll take me up on this opportunity. We would like to submit final grades on Monday.

Good morning Jeff,

I wanted to let you know beforehand that I am a little under the weather so I may have my camera off for today. I will still try to participate whenever I can and contribute to the conversations, but did not want to leave you in the dark (in a literal sense with my camera off). It's hard to believe that we're already here but I'm looking forward to the last session of class. I hope you have a wonderful weekend.

Thank you,

[REDACTED]

It's hard to believe that our final class is tomorrow (both because it is hard to believe that it is somehow already November 13th and simultaneously somehow still 2020). I know that many districts and higher ed institutions are making very difficult decisions right now around pandemic planning and that these decisions are most certainly adding extra stress to many of your already stressed plates. Our plan for tomorrow is the same as most weeks in that we will have a speaker (Dr. Jayasuriya, President of Southwest Minnesota State University), but then we plan to do things a little differently. We have A LOT of presentations to get through, so our plan is to split you into two groups so that we can efficiently get through the case studies. We will then wrap up the class with a chance to exhale a little and make sure that all of your questions for the semester have been answered. This will also present you with your final AMA opportunity with our very own Dr. Bernadeia Johnson (you can also ask me anything, but I ensure you that my answers won't be nearly as insightful as the former Superintendent of Minneapolis Public Schools). We want to send you into Spring semester better off than when you joined us for Fall, so please take this opportunity to jot down some questions, whether it be about your own leadership arc, the program in general, or anything else that you think will be valuable as you continue to grow in your leadership journey.

As always, we will start at 9 am sharp, so please join us on time so that we can hit the road running. Here's the link to the class:

I hope everyone is well and hanging in there for what looks like the start of a long winter. Take solace in knowing that you're three hours away from being three credits closer to completing your graduate journey! If you need me before tomorrow morning, please feel free to e-mail and/or text/call at 763-458-7457.

See you tomorrow,

Jeff
